ebericklumnjie5.tmp How do I recover from this?? A: The drive is corrupted and need to be rebuilt. There are 2 options here, one rebuild disk (using diskpart) and a reinstall of windows Then I will suggest: Rebuild Windows Rebuild Windows with an ISO file, removing all hardware before than Rebuild Windows with the full version, as you will lose all your data Rebuild Windows with an ISO file Rebuild Windows from a Windows ISO file
Rebuild Windows with the full version You can reinstall the previous version of windows and repair it, that's what I did in your case. Start from the DVD drive or USB, then choose to repair the PC. On the page where you can choose a Windows version, choose repair Then follow the simple instructions, just connect the device (Windows), install the bootable drive and reboot. Then, if you were using another drive, you would have had to connect it with a SATA port, else you would have lost all your data. I would suggest you to use the option rebuild Windows with an ISO file, that gives you more security for your data, as you would have the possibility to : return the hard drive to a normal state try several Windows versions
