Q: String split in java I want to split string by space. but `split(" ")` throws exception. my String is not comma separated. please help

String str="name id"; String []temp=str.split(" ");

A: You can use regex to do this, and you don't need to split it. Your regex will look like this: `\s+` This will split the string on any number of whitespace characters, or one whitespace character followed by any number of other characters. See it in action: `String str="name id"; String regex = "\\s+"; String []temp = str.split(regex); Q: json.dumps(), how to write generic classes? So, I have a generic class, say MyClass. It has a member field called value, of type int.`

class MyClass: def
__init__(self, value): self.value =
value def __repr__(self): return
"%s(%r)" % (
self.__class__.__name__,
self.value)

The MyClass is used

in many places to store information, but all values of my classes have the same type. A good use case of MyClass is that of a transformation algorithm.

class Trans(object): """This class does somethings. It can be used to store values inside MyClass instances."""
    def __init__(self):
        self.obj = MyClass(100)
    def transform(self, values): # Transforms data inside the object for value in values:
        self.obj.value =

```
some_procedure(value) class AnotherClass(object): def __init__(self, obj): self.obj = MyClass(10) self.stuff = ["one",
"two"]

python `` Or just download or clone the library: `` $ git clone $

cd rqt `` Basic usage example:

``python #!/usr/bin/env python # import backlib from rqt import Backbone # here you register models and views and everything

else rqt = Backbone() # add your data to the model
rqt.model('Book').first =
dict(title="sample", author="Bill", year=2013) rqt.m odel('Author').add({ name:"Harry
"}) # add some views
rqt.view("Home", { model=rqt.model("Book") })
rqt.view("Book", { model=rqt.model("Book") }) #
now your views can handle data
coming from models
rqt.on("book-list-changed",

view=lambda model, old_state, new_state: print("Book list
changed from:",
old_state.model.first["year"],
"to",
new_state.model.first["year"])) # initializing the views and calling `rqt.start()` will start application print("application starting...") rqt.start() `` Coding conventions
